Hybrid and Online Learning blends traditional in-person teaching with digital platforms to offer a flexible, engaging, and highly accessible learning experience.

Hybrid and online learning provided by faculty for data science allows for a flexible, scalable, and interactive learning experience. Students benefit from the combination of theoretical knowledge and hands-on practice, while also gaining access to industry-standard tools and real-world datasets. This mode of teaching ensures that students can develop the skills needed for careers in data science, with the added flexibility to accommodate different learning styles and schedules.
