Annual E-Governance Report

2022-23

In order to improve administration and management in the higher education system, e-governance refers to a set of practices that incorporate the appropriate integration of information and communication technology (ICT). It encourages candid dialogue between universities, organizations, and students. It supports democratic values, increases productivity, and provides user services. It provides a framework for the prompt, effective, and transparent provision of services to all parties involved. It aims to cut down on manual labor while enhancing communication, establishing a transparent system, and saving money and time. This goal for efficacy and transparency stems from the information era's ongoing needs. Fast and inexpensive communication, convenience, accountability, openness, improved customer services, and increased information accessibility are some of the "basic parameters" that constitute the foundation of the concept of e-governance. To guarantee the success of e-governance efforts, it is critical to invest in the required training and infrastructure.

Dronacharya College of Engineering is working hard to keep up with the newest e-governance applications in light of the numerous responsibilities that are completed online. Staff workers and students often take part in training on digital literacy. The College has established a well-equipped IT-Cell to supervise and manage the effective operation of computer systems and to address any IT-related issues.
